2014 ANNUAL CONFERENCE IN BALTIMORE

EVENTS

Wednesday, September 10, 2014

Golf Outing: Take to the links at Pine Ridge, one of Baltimore's Classic Five Golf Courses. Not only is this scenic location on the Loch Raven Watershed a stunning place to play, it is a challenging course that hosts several PGA and LPGA events, including the tournament where Nancy Lopez won her second professional title. IMLA will sponsor a friendly round complete with transportation to the course and refreshments. All ticket sales are final and non-refundable.

Land Use Tour and Supper: You can choose what you want to see by selecting from one of three different land use tours! Each three-hour bus excursion will show you what makes Baltimore one of the best destinations for understanding urban redevelopment. Exploring this City will give you valuable insight in to the successful techniques for revitalization of communities and repurposing existing architecture, such as capitalizing on your municipal gems, like expansive waterfront or world-class universities. At each stop, a developer will be on hand to discuss the challenges and impacts of the project. See how green building techniques can create a thriving urban area with attractions, restaurants, shops, and spaces that appeal to residents, tourists, and businesses alike. All three tours will end at the Woodberry Kitchen in Clipper Mill, an innovative green community established on the site of a historical manufacturing area, before returning to the Baltimore Hilton. The Woodberry Kitchen will feature a terrific supper, beverages, a fire pit, and live music. This is a renowned restaurant that had two semi-finalist nominations from the James Beard Foundation in 2013, including a nomination for their Chef, Spike, as the Best Chef for the Mid-Atlantic Region! The Woodberry Kitchen prides itself on farm to table local specialties. Don't miss this opportunity to enjoy braised beef with house made sour cream, yukon gold potato salad, seasonal vegetables, vegetarian chili and cornbread!

bar/restaurants), a thriving fresh-food market, the West Side project that is taking a once-vital shopping district and re-energizing it with the vaudevillian Hippodrome Theater and a BioPark, meeting up along the way with the East Tour (above) during its stop at the 88-acre urban revitalization located near Johns Hopkins Medical campus.

North/West: hosted by Paul Graziano, the Commissioner of Baltimore’s Department of Housing and Community Development since 2000, who oversees a budget of $60 million and nearly 500 employees.

Tour Uplands, a Southwestern development that is tackling urban blight head-on, despite economic downturn, lawsuits and foreclosures, with a $238 million dollar public-private investment to create 761 mixed-income for sale and rental houses and multi-family units in an “urban village” with trees, grass, winding streets, then continue to North Baltimore to compare completed development projects like the Village of Cross Keys (built in 1965 as a planned community by legendary developer James W. Rouse, who ultimately founded the city of Columbia, Maryland), Roland Park (includes a Tudor-style series of stores that became the nation’s first planned shopping center), Belvedere Square (originally constructed in 1984 and rehabilitated in 2002 as part of an $11.5 million project that now houses boutiques, a food market, a wine bar, and restaurants), and finish the tour by viewing Station North Arts and Entertainment District, named for its historic Penn Railway Station, and subject to a 30-year, $1 billion plan to create a “cultural crossroads” comprised of a design district, redeveloped landmarks, hotels, housing for professionals and students, a shopping center, and parking that harmonizes the Charles Theatre, the Meyerhoff Symphony Orchestra Hall, and the Lyric Opera House.

The tour will also drive by the Baltimore American Indian Center—located in Fells Point on Broadway near Johns Hopkins Hospital.
