SPEAKER BIOS

Allison I. Fultz is a partner with Kaplan Kirsch & Rockwell. She devotes a significant portion of her practice to transactional and regulatory matters concerning transportation and infrastructure projects. She has broad experience representing state and municipal governments before the Surface Transportation Board and various state and federal courts in connection with the acquisition and abandonment of railroad rights-of-way, rails-to-trails proposals, environmental reporting, agency rulemaking and high-speed rail development. She also represents regional passenger transportation agencies in negotiations with freight railroads for the acquisition and shared use of rail corridors and provides counsel on contracts for project management, construction, operations and maintenance services. Ms. Fultz also advises clients on coordinated land use and multi-modal transportation planning, transit-oriented development, historic preservation issues and the construction and alteration of rail facilities.
