8:45AM to 9:00PM	Brandenburgische Akademie der Wissenschaften	Introductions		Ben E. Griffith & Tyler Wallach
9:00AM to 12:00PM	Brandenburgische Akademie der Wissenschaften	The Right of Privacy under American and German Law: A Comparison of Perspectives  CLE - 2.5 hours	Benjamin E. Griffith & Sven Kohlmeier will discuss the right of privacy from the perspective of American lawyer and a German Rechtsanwalt. They will address differences and similarities between the U.S. privacy laws, the CLOUD Act of 2018, data privacy and privacy protections as well as laws that reflect Germany's approach to the right of privacy, data protection and security, the Network Enforcement Act (NetzDG), the German Federal Data Protection Act, and the European Privacy Standard of 2014 that gave rise to the Right to be Forgotten. This presentation will also touch on implementation of and extraterritorial protection provided under the GDPR, facial recognition technology, computational propaganda and online privacy challenges faced by Google, Facebook and other social media giants. The differences areHelloH global in nature, transnational in scope and rooted deeply in history. The similarities center on possible collaboration between the U.S. and the E.U. and reflect the closeness of these two nations in the field of human rights, governmental oversight, individual freedom and the fundamental right of privacy.  15-minute coffee break 10:30AM-10:45AM	Mrs. Smoltczyk Berlin Data Protection Officer  Ben E. Griffith Sven Kohlmeier

9:00AM to 9:15AM	Justice Department, Schöneberg	Welcome Speech		Dr. Dirk Behrendt Berlin Ministry of Justice
9:30AM to 11:45PM	Justice Department, Schöneberg	Cybersecurity Issues and Surveillance Topics  CLE - 2 hours	Cybersecurity is an obvious precondition for privacy: A hacked system is unable to protect its users' data. However the current legal systems in the US and Germany set contradictory incentives: Governments may be tempted to undermine security in the interest of keeping systems vulnerable to lawful interception. And manufacturers as well as vendors of IT systems, in particular "Internet of Things" devices, have little interest in observing even basic rules of cybersecurity.  The talk shines a light on the current counterproductive legal framework around cybersecurity and discusses possible "updates" in order to make our devices more secure.  15-minute coffee break 10:45AM-11:00AM	Dr. Ulf Buermeyer  Moderator: Mary Ellen Bench

9:00AM to 11:00AM	Brandenburgische Akademie der Wissenschaften, Gendarmenmarkt	Immigration Accommodation Issues  CLE - 2 hours	The influx of refugees since 2014 has triggered a controversial public debate about immigration issues. But migration is not a recent phenomenon in Germany. Around 1.3 million foreigners were living in the German Empire before World War I. The economic boom in Western Germany in the 1960ies led to labor immigration from Turkey, Italy, Portugal and other countries. At that time, the government believed, the immigrants would leave. But they did not. Many of them stayed and brought their families. Wars and civil wars made people from Lebanon, Iraq, former Yugoslavia and other countries seek refuge in Germany. Dealing with migration and diversity is a challenge, not only in Germany. How are local communities dealing with it? And what about the difference between Germany and America?  15-minute coffee break 10:45AM-11:00AM	Mrs. Bilkay Kadem  Moderator: Justice Michael D. Wallach
11:00AM to 11:30PM	Brandenburgische Akademie der Wissenschaften, Gendarmenmarkt	Human rights  CLE - .5 hours	The civil war in Colombia went on for more than 50 years. Attempts at peace making seemed promising, but failed when the guerrillas who gave up their guns and turned to politics were systematically murdered. Guerrillas, right wing paramilitary armies, and the Colombian Army committed atrocities, war crimes. The Peace Agreement signed in late 2016 calls for many government reforms, changing the systems that led to the civil war. However, many Colombians, mainly in the cities, were not greatly involved in the war and are not enthusiastic about carrying out the promised changes. The government has not taken over the areas left by the guerrillas as it promised to do, and the areas are left to murderous gangs and drug traffickers. What will it take to implement this far ranging peace agreement?	Intro: Ben Griffith  Eunice Gibson
