TIME	LOCATION	TITLE	DESCRIPTION	SPEAKERS
10:10AM to 11:10AM	Blue Room	Section 1983: First Amendment Hot Topics	The first presentation will focus on the 1st Amendment limitations on compelled speech and the freedom not to speak. It will look at a real world example of a proposed ordinance that would have compelled speech and the rights of municipalities to require specific statements. The second presentation will focus on limitations of governmental regulation of non-employee speech v. regulation of employee speech. The second presentation will focus on the application of the First Amendment to religious speech and religious exercise, which has been a source of considerable change and development in recent Supreme Court terms. The presentation provides an update on cases and controversies involving government restrictions on the religious speech and exercise of employees and non-employees, as well as questions arising when the government itself is the speaker.	Aimee Alcorn-Reed & Joshua Skinner
10:10AM to 11:10AM	Hampton Room	Marijuana, CBD Oil, and Delta-8: Legalized substances and employer drug testing	In 21 states and Washington D.C., recreational use of cannabis is legal. CBD oil is approved for use in every state with various restrictions. Delta-8 appears to be legal in many states as well. How do these substances impact employer drug testing? What can employers do to help employees? How must employers handle a positive drug test when an employee has used a legal substance? We will discuss all of these questions and likely develop more in this session.	Morgain Patterson & Robin Cross Moderator: Lori Brill
11:10AM to 11:25AM	Blue Pre-Function	Coffee Break
11:25AM to 12:25PM	Hampton Room	Drones as a First Responder	Drones as first responders (DFR) are force multipliers for law enforcement. But, many see them as invasive and ripe for abuse by government over reach. When a local government proactively explains, engages, and informs the public about its intended use of unmanned aerial systems, the result can be a win for law enforcement and the community. In this presentation, Brookhaven Police Lieutenant Abrem Ayana will discuss the mechanics and uses of DFR in support of law enforcement and de-escalation of police-citizen encounters. Brookhaven City Attorney Chris Balch will demonstrate how engaging and seeking out input from advocacy groups, prosecutors, and the community can establish the dialogue necessary to have new police programs embraced by a suspicious public. Materials will include the DFR Policy developed and adopted by Brookhaven, examples of the program in action, and discussion of how to navigate the lack of clear court direction when establishing a DFR program.	Chris Balch & Lt. Abrem Ayana
11:25AM to 12:25PM	Blue Room	Section 1983: Trial Practice Skills	This presentation will provide practical pointers on openings and summations for Section 1983 trials.	Patricia Miller

9:00AM to 10:30AM	Blue Room	Section 1983: Hot Topics	The first presentation will explore public liability for private violence. In the summer of 2020, Seattle and many other cities across the country had racial justice protests motivated by the murder of George Floyd. Based on events that happened during the protests, the City of Seattle has faced claims that the City should have done more to prevent private acts of violence or property damage. This presentation will cover the defenses and challenges for these types of Substantive Due Process claims. The second presentation will discuss how the lack of qualified applicants for police officer positions can lead to lowering standards for hiring and training which can impact liability for the entity.	Kerala Cowart & Jack Ryan
9:00AM to 10:30AM	Hampton Room	Alternative Project Delivery in Public Construction: Effective Contract Distinctions for DB and CMAR Projects		Steven Torres Moderator: Lina James
10:30AM to 10:45AM	Blue Pre-Function	Coffee Break
10:45AM to 11:45AM	Blue Room	Section 1983: Demolitions and Due Process	This presentation will discuss the intersection of city code enforcement and civil rights in the context of demolition of unsafe property. The presenters will discuss notification to owners of code violations and evaluation of the need for demolition based on safety. They will then discuss constitutional minimum notice requirements prior to demolition. The presenters will compare and contrast two different local governments' programs related to demolitions.	Donna Fairweather, Amy Skiles & Katie Faris

10:45AM to 11:45AM	Hampton Room	The Escalation of Abusive State Preemption in 2023	As state legislatures have become increasingly polarized over the past decade and a half, there has been a dramatic rise in “new preemption.” Once used sparingly to maintain consistency on areas of statewide interests, state preemption is increasingly infringing on a range of traditionally local issues, including municipal budgeting, public health and safety, county election administration, local law enforcement and more. These abusive state preemption laws stem from reactions to topical political issues, but have long-term ramifications for local governments’ ability to execute basic functions. The Local Solutions Support Center (LSSC) has been tracking abusive state preemption nationwide—including over 1000 bills in the 2022 legislative session—and observing trends salient to the 2023 legislative session. In particular, LSSC has noted an increase in preemption related to equitable housing policies, prosecutorial discretion, reproductive rights, LGBTQ+ rights, and other topics. This session will brief attendees on emerging and escalating trends at the mid-point in the 2023 legislative session, legal questions they give rise to, and their long-term ramifications. This session will also equip local government attorneys with the tools and guidance they need to support and protect local democracy in the face of abusive state preemption.	Marissa Roy, Nestor Davidson & Katie Belanger
11:55AM to 12:55PM	Hampton Room	The Fair Housing Act, the New Affirmatively Furthering Fair Housing Rule and the impact on Siting of Affordable Housing	This panel will discuss a brief history of the Fair Housing Act and related laws including the newly proposed HUD rulemaking regarding local agency obligations to affirmatively furthering fair housing. These existing and new rules impact a local agencies to fund and site affordable housing projects	Patricia Link & Elizabeth Hull Moderator: Patrick Baker
